HUGHES BIDDING

est friend of labor that ever occupied the governor's chair at Albany. During his two terms he has signed 56 labor laws, including among them the best labor laws ever enacted in this or any other state. He also urged the enactment of labor laws, in his message to the legislature, even going so far as to place the draft of one labor bill in his message. Only 16 labor laws have been enacted in this state since its erection in 1777—in 135 years. One third of these, exceeding in quality all others, have been enacted and signed during Governor Hughes' term of three years and nine months.

He also urged the enactment of labor laws, in his message to the legislature, even going so far as to place the draft of one labor bill in his message. Only 16 labor laws have been enacted in this state since its erection in 1777—in 135 years. One third of these, exceeding in quality all others, have been enacted and signed during Governor Hughes' term of three years and nine months.

"That is what organized labor through its official organ said of my labor record after I had left the field of politics," the nominee said. "It was said, well knowing that I had not failed to disagree with labor when I thought the demand was not right. I had exercised, according to my duty as governor, the right of judgment as to the propriety and wisdom of bills which were presented. I had vetoed some which I did not think were just. I had proposed and urged the passage of others that I thought were fair. When we got through and the record was made up, that is what the friends of labor said, and I believe I can say modestly it was because there was a realization of the deep interest I had to see contentions proved."

Mr. Hughes repeated his attack on the administration, for its Mexican policy, reiterated his argument for a protective tariff, for "adequate preparedness" and stated his views on the maintenance abroad of American rights. Mr. Hughes' speech here tonight was the sixteenth he had made today. Most of them were two or three minute talks from the rear platform of his car on the way up the San Joaquin valley from Los Angeles. He was very tired and somewhat hoarse tonight. Mr. Hughes departed tonight for the east. He will speak at Reno, Nev., tomorrow.

"THE COME BACK" IS FEATURE AT ORPHEUM

In this distinctive offering on the Metro Program, which appears at the Orpheum today, two notable stars, Harold Lockwood and May Allison, make their initial bow from the screen to Metro audiences. Mr. Lockwood and Miss Allison need no introduction to photoplay lovers, however, for their work in romantic and thrilling screen productions is already well and popularly known wherever motion pictures are shown. In the future these gifted stars will be seen exclusively in pictures released on the Metro Program, several of which, selected especially with regard to the peculiar talents of Mr. Lockwood and Miss Allison, are already in process of production.

The story of "The Come-Back," which was written and directed by Fred J. Balshofer, deals with the regeneration of Burt Ridgway, a rich man's son, who, lured by the temptations which his father's wealth affords, has become a dissipated society idler. A designing woman, and the difficulties into which she leads him, suddenly awakens him to a realization of his weakness, and he seeks to hide himself and his identity in a lumber camp in the woods of Northern Maine which his father owns and which he has heard is not being handled as it should be by the company's manager, Mac Helberton.

REVENUE BILL

ation.
"If we could bring the Democratic party into a court of justice and indict and try that party under rules of law," said the Utah senator, "the evidence that could be submitted would be more than adequate to convict it of securing votes under false pretenses."
"Unfortunately we can have no trial under the rules of law, but which is undoubtedly better, we shall have a trial before the great tribunal of the American people, whose verdict will be given as impartially as ever was given by a jury of twelve good men and true. We shall know on the eighth of November, whether, in the eyes of the jury, the Democratic party has kept its economy pledge."

Senator Curtis predicted "four or five deficiency appropriations" before the year 1917 is over, advocating a return to the protective tariff and declared the Republican party was "opposed to a war tax in a time of peace."

Just before adjournment Senator Penrose introduced a resolution to recommit the revenue bill to the finance committee with instructions that it be amended to raise an equitable portion of required revenue from the protective tariff. No action was taken on the proposal.

RAIL LEADERS CONFER

be held here more than 48 hours long.

An invitation to visit the capitol, was extended the men today by Vice-President Marshall, and was accepted by a large number. The Vice-President addressed them cordially. The brotherhood heads in their first formal statement since arriving in Washington, replied to various contentions of the railroad managers. They declared the railroads never had shown a desire to resort to arbitration unqualifiedly. The statement said in part:

"It is true that the executives of the four brotherhoods advocated the passage of the Newland Act and they did so under the mistaken belief (which subsequent experience has shattered) that its terms would be carried out in good faith by the representatives of the companies."

"The sincerity of this new born and loudly proclaimed belief, as expressed by the spokesman of the railway presidents: 'we stand for the principle of arbitration for the settlement of industrial disputes'—is best shown by the attitude of these railway companies who are so loudly proclaiming the virtues of the arbitration, and their undying adherence thereto; by the attitude of those same companies toward arbitration on a long list of properties which they absolutely own and control, but which they have refused to include in the present negotiations and to the men on which lines they are refusing the 'day in court' so feelingly referred to by the spokesman of the railroad presidents."

Here followed a list of sixty-four properties, which the statement said the brotherhood officials sought fulfillment on June 27 to have represented by the railroad managers in the present disputes.

"In addition to these," the statement continues, "are a large number of quasi-industrial properties largely by donated by the same financial powers, which we have vainly demanded should be included."

nously referred to.

"It might be pertinent at this time to refer to fact that the conference committee of managers and their supporters have excluded the army of colored brakemen and firemen employed on the southern railroads from all benefits that might be granted in these negotiations or from all arrangements that might arise. Are they or are they not entitled to their day in court. Why is he excluded from the benefits of this plan of arbitration. Also, the hostlers on 18 of the leading properties that are represented by the conference committee; if arbitration is so desirable why will those companies not grant that boon to these men?"

"The extreme solicitude on the part of the railway presidents for the 80 percent of unorganized employees and their rights becomes farcical when it is known that on a large number of those lines it is a dischargeable offense on any of their railways for that 80 percent to take any steps toward organizing for the purpose of bettering their wage or working conditions."
